

ROBERT LAMB

OCT. 11, 1984

SHERA STORY PREMISES

1. The Horde discovers valuable mineral deposits under the ice in Frosta's kingdom. Hordak orders the melting of the Kingdom of the Snows.
2. While visiting Frosta, Bow falls into a deep crevasse. Shera rescues him and they discover the frozen form of a First One.
3. Volcanic activity threatens the village of Cooleron in the Kingdom of Snows. Shera and Frosta join forces to stop the devastating lava flow.
4. When a raid on a Horde fuel depot backfires, Glimmer, who organized the mission, runs away in a fit of guilt. She is captured by Scorpia. ~~Now~~ Angella and Shera go to Scorpion Hill to rescue Glimmer.
5. A young boy, caught up by the spiffy accoutrements of Horde-types, joins up with ~~the~~ them (the equivalent of a Horde cadet or scout camp), and finds that he gets more than he bargained for. ~~His~~ His sister, meanwhile, is throwing her sympathies to the Rebels, and through them rescues her brother (Possible crossover story)
6. An island kingdom supplies the Horde with ores that they ~~need~~ need. They haven't even heard of the rebellion. Shera must persuade them to, quite literally, give up what seems to be their sole source ~~of~~ of income/ survival, and finds another way for them to get by just as comfortably.
7. Bounty hunters (maybe some of the new characters), knowing that Hordak will pay well for the leaders of the rebels, snare a couple -- only to find that the Horde doesn't pay anything for anything: they take what they want. ~~As~~ As a consequence, the Bounty Hunters and the few captured rebels end up on the same side.
8. Stratos, He Man and Orko come to Etheria. Vultak is leading a series of air raids on rebel missions. Stratos takes on Vultak. He Man and Orko help Shera find out how the Horde knows their every move.
9. Hose Nose makes his way to the Whispering Woods. The Horde is stealing his people's water supply. His land is that of fountains and pools. His people, the Hosers, have built their lives and society around water. Shera and the Rebels go to their aid.