TEASER

1 INT. ANTEUS' HOUSE - DAY

A prosperous, middle-aged woman, ZORA, is desperately putting provisions in a sack while her 12-year-old son, ICUS, looks stunned.

ICUS
It's not true! It can't be!

ZORA
Icus, he told me himself.

ICUS
But Mother --

ZORA
There's no time to argue. Now, get your coat while I pack some food. You're bound to get hungry.

Icus reacts as he gets his coat while Zora puts fruit, meat, nutbread, etc. in the sack.

ICUS
How long must I be gone?

ZORA
Until it's safe for you to return.

ICUS
But Mother, I don't understand.

Eyeing her son, Zora stops and pulls him close.

ZORA
Neither do I, love...
(imploring the heavens)
...neither do I.

An approaching SHOUT from outside interrupts them.

MAELL (O.S.)
(calls)
Icus? You home?

Reacting, Zora thrusts the sack of provisions into Icus' hands and rushes him to the back door.

ZORA
(opening door)
Run! Find a place to hide and stay there. I'll find you when it's safe.

ICUS MAELL (O.S.)
But -- Icus?

ZORA Go!
And with a last look, Icus is gone.

CUT TO:

2 EXT. A LAKE - DAY

2

As Argo grazes by some bushes from which hang Xena's and Gabrielle's clothes, a SPLASH draws the camera PANNING toward the water while we hear:

GABRIELLE (O.S.)
Sorry. How was that? *

XENA (O.S.)
Very good. *

GABRIELLE (O.S.)
Really? It felt a little awkward. *

XENA (O.S.)
No, you're getting the hang of it. *

With that, the camera FINDS AND HOLDS on Xena and Gabrielle. They stand in the water. Both of them are buck naked. They're staring down into the water.

XENA
Now, reach under the rock, give it your best shot.

Gabrielle bends over, disappearing for a moment under water. Then she pops up -- A LARGE CATFISH appended to her hand. She just shoved her fist into the fish's mouth.

GABRIELLE
I did it!

Argo's NEIGH draws their attention to:

THE SHORE OF THE LAKE

where Icus, carrying his sack of provisions, is running for all he's worth. From the woods beyond, we hear the various SHOUTS of his pursuers: "Where'd he go?", "He can't be far," "Spread out!", "Try the lake," etc.

Casting a look over his shoulder, Icus trips, dropping his sack as he goes, sprawling near a patch of water reeds. Behind him the SHOUTS grow CLOSER when, suddenly -- -- Xena surfaces amidst the reeds! As Icus reacts, she quickly motions for silence, hands him a reed through which to breath, and, seizing Icus, pulls him with her...

ON ZEALOT #1

Muscular and clean cut, he approaches the lake. He glances out at the still waters and is about to turn away when he notices:

THE REED

moving in the water.

ON ZEALOT #1

He reaches down, grabs the reed and gives it a jerk.

ON ICUS

as he explodes out of the water, sucking air. Zealot #1 grabs him and lifts him from the lake, shouting to his comrades:

ZEALOT #1
Here he is! I got him!

Suddenly, Xena bursts from the lake like a murderous siren, tears Icus away from the Zealot, and tosses him back into the lake while...

...the stunned Zealot's gaze drops to focus, transfixed, on Xena's chest.

XENA (O.S.)
(dripping both water and contempt)
Didn't your mother ever tell you it's rude to stare?

*
*

And hauling back, she takes him out with a single punch.

ON XENA'S TUNIC

*

Her hand grabs it as we see in the background:

*

THREE MORE ZEALOTS

*

emerging from the woods.

*

ON XENA

*

Now in her tunic, she grabs a LINE ON WHICH THREE FISH
HANG. Using it as a bolo, she begins whacking these guys.

*

Meanwhile, Gabrielle slips on her dress and turns to Icus, who is still in the water, cautioning:

*
*

--- GABRIELLE
Stay where you are. You'll be safer.

*

*

Xena is dispatching another slack-jawed Zealot with a kick that shuts his jaw with a teeth-shattering CRUNCH while --

*

-- behind her, another Zealot is sneaking up on Xena when --

Gabrielle launches an attack with her staff, catching him under the chin with a clean blow.

*

More Zealots charge Xena. Springing into the air, she somersaults over their heads, landing behind them so that, as they turn...

*

*

...Xena slaps the faces of all three with the fish-bolo in one fluid move before coming back from the other direction with a punch that knocks them out: one, two, three.

*

But as Xena spins again, she suddenly stops, finding herself face-to-face with...

...MAELL, clearly the leader of these Zealots, a muscular man in his 20's whose eyes burn with the icy fire of an ambitious fanatic. Completely unmoved by Xena's appearance, he keeps his eyes locked on hers.

MAELL

I don't know who...

(cool once-over)

...or what you are. But this business is none of yours.

XENA

My name is Xena. And the way I see it, half-a-dozen men going after one small, defenseless boy kinda makes it my business.

(facetious)

Call it my maternal instinct.

*

*

ICUS

Don't let him take me! Please!

XENA

(to Icus; her eyes never leaving Maell)

Nobody's taking you anywhere.

Maell returns her gaze as his men begin reviving. Then:

MAELL

This isn't over. What must be, will be.

And motioning his men to follow, Maell exits.

Xena watches them go, then turns to Icus.

XENA

What was that all about?

ICUS
(hesitates; then)
He wants to take me to be sacrificed.

GABRIELLE
Sacrificed?! You mean, like on an altar... with a knife?
(off his unhappy nod)
But that's barbaric!

XENA
(skeptical)
Who'd want to do such a thing?

ICUS
(sadly bewildered)
My father.

And ON the women's reactions, we:

FADE OUT.

3 EXT. WOODS - DAY

3

Xena scans the area searchingly as she takes Icus (who carries his sack) and Gabrielle (who leads Argo) through the woods.

ICUS

I know how it looks. But my father's a good man.

(off their dubious faces)
Really, he is. Once when I was very sick, he stayed by my bed night and day. Never left 'til I was feeling better. He's always been like that.

*
*
*
*
*

XENA

Then why'd he send that thug after you?

*

ICUS

Thug? Oh, you mean my brother, Maell.

*

XENA

Your brother?!

GABRIELLE

Nice Family.

*

---ICUS

Maell and his men are very strong in their faith. Maell helped my father teach our people new ways to farm. Now we grow twice as much as we used to.

*
*
*
*

XENA

What about your mother? You said she warned you. How does she feel about this?

ICUS

I don't know. She's mixed up about all of this, too, I guess. My father's never hurt anyone, ever.

*
*

Seeing his pained confusion, Gabrielle eyes him kindly.

GABRIELLE

Then I'm sure there's an explanation, and we'll find it...

(turning)

...right, Xena?

Reacting, Gabrielle stares to find... Xena's gone.

GABRIELLE

Xena?

XENA (O.S.)

(calling)

In here. I found it.

Surprised, Gabrielle and Icus scan the woods.

GABRIELLE

Found what?

Xena emerges from a small cave hidden behind a tangle of vines.

XENA

My army came through here once a couple of years ago. I used this cave as a shelter for my wounded men.
You'll be safe here, so you two make camp.

*
*
*

(crossing to Argo)

I'll be back as soon as I can.

GABRIELLE

Where're you going?

XENA

(mounting Argo)

To have a talk with Icus' family, find out for myself what kind of father'd want to kill his own son.

CUT TO:

MAELL

At the moment, no. But don't worry.
My men and I'll get him back if we have to die doing it.

ANTEUS

(suddenly agitated)

No!

His agitation surprises even Anteus who frowns, confused.
Noting his father's bewilderment, Maell eyes him closely.
But, pulling himself together, Anteus continues, explaining:

ANTEUS

There's been too much violence already.
That's not our way.

MAELL

Nor would I choose it. But this Xena's left me no alternative. These are new times, Father. They demand new ways.

ANTEUS

To follow a path of peace is new. We teach by example, not by force.

MAELL

But Father, when the truth can help so many, surely we're honorbound to spread it the most aggressive way we can!

-- XENA (O.S.)

One that includes killing children?

Whirling, Maell and Anteus react to see...

...Xena has joined them, standing by the door.

Instantly, Maell draws his sword. But Anteus stops him.

ANTEUS

No.

(as Maell hesitates; imperious)

I said no.

A BEAT. Then Maell sheaths his sword. But as Anteus turns to Xena, he winces at a sudden pain in his head. Seeing this, Xena instinctively starts toward him.

XENA

You better lie down. You don't look well.

MAELL

(intercepting her)

My father's health, like everything else here, is not your concern. Just let us have Icus, and move on. That's all we want.

Hearing that, Anteus looks up eagerly, dismissing his pain.

ANTEUS

You have Icus?! How is he?

Noting his genuine concern, Xena's surprised to find he's not the monster she had envisioned.

XENA

Confused. He doesn't understand how his father could love him one day, and want to kill him the next.

ANTEUS

(becoming agitated)

But I don't want to kill him. Surely he knows that.

Xena notes his odd agitation before asking:

XENA

Then why are you doing this?

Controlling himself with effort, Anteus is sad, but resolved.

ANTEUS

Because God has commanded it.

XENA

God?! Which god? Ares? Zeus?

MAELL

(righteously)

There's only one true Supreme Deity. The Almighty God of my father, the One whose voice speaks only to him.

XENA

Uh-huh. And this one god -- this all-powerful deity -- he told you to kill an innocent boy?

(shaking her head)

And I thought Ares was cold.

(turning to Anteus)

Why's he want you to do this?

4

Anteus' anguish makes it clear he doesn't know as Maell steps between them, eyeing Xena coldly.

MAELL

Our Holy One is not accountable to anyone, let alone a nonbeliever.

XENA

Then you'd better pray he has a change of heart. Because until he does, Icus stays with me.

She turns to exit. But as she does, Maell draws his sword and Xena spins back, fully alert, only to see -- -- the sword halts, stopped by Anteus' grip on Maell's arm.

ANTEUS

Enough! She leaves unharmed. I'll pray to God for guidance. But until I get it, there'll be no more violence...

(to Xena; a vow)

...of any kind.

A BEAT. Then, once again, Maell puts up his sword. But the look he levels Xena as she exits is as lethal as they come.

CUT TO:

5 EXT. NEAR AN ABANDONED WELL - DAY

Still on Maell's menacing scowl as he states flatly:

MAELL

She's got to die.

PULL BACK to see he's talking to his troop of Zealots.

ZEALOT #1

But how? You said, yourself, Anteus forbids it.

MAELL

My father is a wise man. But he is also an aging man in failing health. No doubt that's why he doesn't see Xena for what she truly is: a trial sent by the Almighty One to test our resolve.

The crowd's MURMURS suggest they never looked at it that way.

5 CONTINUED:

5

MAELL

(playing them)

Can you doubt it? All you have to do is look at her to see she's unnatural -- an affront to God! A woman with the strength of ten men -- out in the world alone, save for her scrawny little companion. She's a complete abomination!

The Zealots MUTTER their increasing disgust.

MAELL

(really working them)

And to think this freak of nature has my brother! A boy so innocent and pure that the All-Powerful One has called him to His side at the tender age of twelve!

(off the crowd's rising RUMBLES)

How do you think the Supreme Deity feels about that? Leaving His chosen one in the hands of a woman whose gods are as primitive as she is?!

ZEALOT #1

(erupting fanatically)

Xena must die!

The others join him in SHOUTS of "Kill the harlot!", "She's a freak!", "Pagan bitch!", etc. as through the COMMOTION and NOISE we find and HOLD on Maell's satisfied smile.

CUT TO:

6 INT. XENA'S HIDEOUT CAVE - DAY

Filtered sunlight illuminates Icus who seems miles away as he sits listening to Gabrielle's exciting story.

GABRIELLE

Huh? Oh! Uh -- right!

ICUS
(hesitates; then)
Sorry. You tell a great story. It's just, I can't stop thinking about my father, and wondering why he'd wanna.--

He stops, reluctant to even say it.

GABRIELLE
(sympathizing)
Yeah... But it's no good speculating.
We'll know a lot more when Xena gets back.

(crossing to peer past the vines)
I just hope she thinks to bring some food. I'm famished.

ICUS
I've got food.

GABRIELLE
(crossing back)
You do?

ICUS
(opening cloth sack)
My mother packed it for me. See?
(removing each item)
Apples, pears, cheese...

GABRIELLE
(spotting it)
Is that nutbread? Yummm...! I haven't had any of that since I was home.

ICUS
Help yourself. I'm not hungry.

GABRIELLE
Well, if you're sure...

PULL BACK to reveal... Zora, kneeling in supplication.

ZORA

Hestia, goddess of hearth and home, it has been many years since I have honored you. But, please, hear my prayer. Protect my son, Icus.

XENA (O.S.)

Don't worry. Icus is safe.

Startled, Zora turns to see...

...Xena emerging from the surrounding woods to join her.

ZORA

(rising eagerly)

You know my Icus? Where is he? Who are you?

XENA

My name is Xena. Icus is staying with me and a friend 'til we can sort this thing out. That's why I came to talk to you.

ZORA

But how did you know I was here?

XENA

When I saw you weren't at home, I asked myself where a mother who loves her son enough to defy her husband would go.

(indicating shrine)

The patron goddess of families seemed like a good place to start.

ZORA

(looking guilty)

If Anteus knew I'd turned from his God back to the old ones, it would kill him.

XENA

Tough choice, seeing his god wants to kill Icus. Just answer me this: how can he follow a god who needs to murder children?

ZORA

He never has before! And what's even stranger, not two months ago, our Supreme One told Anteus to break with tradition and make Icus our next leader, not our oldest son, Maell.

XENA

(reacting)

Did Maell know about this?

ZORA

I don't know. Lately, Anteus has been so secretive and strange. I'm afraid he confides more in his God than in me.

(appealing to Xena)

That's why you have to try and reach him, Xena. Please -- to kill a child, it can't be right, no matter what god you follow.

XENA

I'll speak to Anteus. But it's probably better if we go separately. It may not be good for your health to be seen with me.

ZORA

Wait.

(reaching into a pocket)
I have a little more nutbread. Would (handing it to her)

I packed some in his sack, but you know how children are about nutbread. And Maell had this one specially made, so I thought --

XENA

-- Wait!

(sniffing and tasting a pinch of nutbread)
Did you say Maell had this made?

ZORA

(nods)
It's one of the special treats he's been bringing Anteus lately.

Xena frowns, reacting to the nutbread's taste and smell as Zora turns to get her shawl.

ZORA

Still, I don't think Anteus would mind
Icus having some, do you?

Getting no answer, Zora turns back to find... Xena's gone.

Thrusting back the vines, Xena rushes into the cave to beside her.

9 INT. XENA'S HIDEOUT CAVE - DAY (CONTINUOUS) 9

Xena checks Gabrielle for signs of life, relieved to hear her heartbeat, feeling her pulse, seeing her pupil contract when she pries up one of her eyelids.

XENA
Gabrielle?! Gabrielle, can you hear me? Wake up! Are you all right?

Staring up through one eye, Gabrielle gives a loopy smile.

GABRIELLE
Great... just great.
(rolls her one open eye;
starting to panic)
...Only I can't see so good.

XENA
Try using both eyes.

Reacting, Gabrielle opens her other eye and beams, rolling them around together.

GABRIELLE
Oh, yeah... Good idea. This is much better --

She stops, staring up at Xena, transfixed.

XENA
(concerned)
What? What is it?

GABRIELLE
By the gods, Xena...
(dazed smile)
...you're beautiful!

XENA
Uh-huh. And you are drugged...
(showing her nutbread crumbs)
...with henbane, if I'm not mistaken.
So the effects should be temporary.
But we need to get you moving. Think you can stand?

GABRIELLE
You mean, I'm not?

With a look, Xena hauls Gabrielle to her feet and starts walking her around the cave.

XENA

Now, I want you to concentrate, okay?

GABRIELLE

Okay. But I think it's a big waste of time. I've been walking since I was one.

XENA

This isn't about walking, Gabrielle. It's about Icus. You remember Icus?

GABRIELLE

(with a look)

Well, of course I remember Icus.

XENA

Good. Do you know where he is?

GABRIELLE

Where?

XENA

No -- I'm asking you: where's Icus?

GABRIELLE

(blinking)

I don't know...

(looking around)

Icus? Icus?

(checks her pockets)

Icus, you in there? Icus...?

(back to Xena; appalled)

I've lost Icus!

And with that, Gabrielle bursts into tears, throwing herself in Xena's arms. Knowing a drug-induced crying jag when she sees one, Xena pats Gabrielle's back as she devises a plan. Then:

XENA

(disengaging)

Gabrielle... Gabrielle, calm down. I'm sure you didn't lose Icus. He probably saw you pass out, and went for help.

(almost afraid to ask)

By the way, how much nutbread did Icus eat?

GABRIELLE

(embarrassed)

None.

(defensive)

I wanted to share. But it was just so good -- and he said he wasn't hungry -- 'til before long, it was gone...

(tears welling)

...just like Icus.

XENA

(forestalling more tears)

It's okay! There's no sign of a struggle. My guess is he went to get his mother. Aside from us, she's his only ally.

GABRIELLE

(instantly cheered)

Then what are we waiting for? Let's go!

(turns to empty cave behind her)

The rest of you -- follow me!

But as Gabrielle whirls and starts for the entrance, Xena stops her.

XENA

Hold it.

GABRIELLE

(quick; behind her)

At ease.

XENA

(vamping as she goes)

I've got a better idea... I'll go get Icus while you and the... uh...

(indicates empty cave)

...'others'... stay here and try to, uh... try to --

GABRIELLE

(venturing eagerly)

-- work on our song?

Between you and me, the altos are slightly flat.

XENA

(why not?)

Perfect! But above all:

(straight into her face)

Do not leave the cave. Understand?
Stay here until I get back. Have I made myself clear?

GABRIELLE

(staring hard)

No. But you're getting sorta fuzzy at the edges, so keep trying, you'll get there.

(then; turning to empty cave)

Okay, fellas -- from the top...

As Gabrielle conducts a chorus only she can hear, Xena looks torn -- hating to leave, but having no choice.

ZORA

All right, I'm coming! But I'll be no

You old hag.

He raises his arm to give her a slap. Then suddenly he stops.

BRAWNY ZEALOT

Ahhhhhh!

Immediately WIDEN to see Xena has come up behind him and is applying a paralyzing hold on a pressure point in his neck.

XENA

(to Zealot)

Looks painful.

(more pressure)

You really ought to see a doctor.

As he blacks out from pain, Xena lets him drop and quickly moves to Zora.

XENA

(untying her)

What happened? Are you all right?

ZORA

Don't bother with me. The Zealots took Icus. You've got to stop them!

BELOW, the Zealots reach a bend. But as they start around it, all react to hear --

-- the sharp CRACK of stone hitting stone somewhere behind them.

Whirling, the Zealots turn toward the sound (which effectively puts Icus at their backs) as, motioning for quiet, the Senior Zealot listens hard while we PULL BACK to include...

...Xena standing ABOVE them, holding a large rock which she heaves out of sight, creating another sharp CRACK.

BELOW, the Senior Zealot reacts and nods to some men to check it out.

As they obey, all the others stare after them, unaware that, behind them...

...a rope drops from the boulders above -- lassoes Icus -- and pulls him up like a yo-yo on a string as --

-- the investigating Zealots return, shrugging their puzzlement as we PULL BACK to see...

(to Xena)
What's wrong with him?

XENA
(checking Anteus)
The strain must have been too much.
(gently rousing him)
Anteus? Anteus...?

ICUS
Father, it's me.

Groggily reviving, Anteus reacts to see Xena and Icus.

ANTEUS
(confused)
How -- Why are you --

XENA Shhh... Don't try to talk. You're ill. We'll get you home.

But as she starts to raise him, Anteus grips her arm, his eyes searching hers intently.

Although Anteus seems better as Xena helps him down the mountain, flanked by Icus, the elderly man's ragged breathing concerns her. Spotting some rocks, Xena halts.

XENA

Let's rest here a moment. No sense killing ourselves...

(hearing herself; drily ironic)

...so to speak.

Noting her tone, Anteus gives her a look as he and Icus settle on the rocks nearby.

ANTEUS

You don't think much of us, do you?

XENA

(correcting him)

I don't think much of your god, or any god who'd want to kill a child. But then, I'm not convinced he does.

(loosening his collar)

Here, this will ease your breathing. Now, lean forward.

As he does, Xena places her fingertips at pressure points on Anteus' temples.

XENA

(gently, but firmly)

Anteus, I know your mind is hazy, but haven't you ever stopped to wonder why he'd ask you to do such a thing?

Reaching up, Anteus captures Xena's hands in his own, looking up to eye her levelly.

ANTEUS

Or maybe He's angry at how much I love you.

(turning to Xena)

Or maybe His love demands the best and brightest.

(frustrated)

You see? It never stops!

Xena kneels to talk with him earnestly, face-to-face.

XENA

You could stop it. You're still leader here. You don't have to do it.

ANTEUS

You're asking me to deny my God?!

XENA

I'm asking you to spare your son!

ANTEUS

And teach him what? That faith is only for the times when it's convenient to believe? That when it's hard and it hurts to keep faith, you let it go 'til it gets easy again?

Rising, Anteus seems stronger than we've ever seen him as he insists:

ANTEUS

That's not sparing him. That's robbing him of the very thing that gives life meaning!

Xena eyes him, torn between frustration and a grudging respect.

ZORA

XENA

Nothing some rest and a change of diet won't cure. He's being drugged.
That's why he's seemed so strange to you lately.

ZORA
Drugged?! I don't understand. Who'd want to --

A KNOCK at the front door interrupts her. Instantly alert, Xena draws her sword, positioning herself by the door before

GABRIELLE
